MIGRANT AND ETHNIC MINORITY PEACE BUILDERS

The Migrant and Ethnic Minority Peace Builders in Northern Ireland project (funded by the Joseph Rowntree Charitable Trust) seeks to develop the scope for diverse communities to have a meaningful role in Northern Irish peacebuilding work in the areas of community relations, transitional justice, reconciliation, and conflict prevention. This will be structured through a programme of quarterly capacity-building and networking sessions for a cohort of lived-experience leaders from diverse communities. These events will enable participants to share their experiences of living in Northern Ireland, develop the skills involved in peacebuilding, and network with community activists, peacebuilders, and decision-makers.

Colours of Peace, the launch event for the Peace Builders project, will be held in Belfast Castle on Tuesday 18 June. The day will include a mixture of workshops, discussions, and information sessions. Breakfast, lunch, and refreshments will be provided, and travel reimbursements are available.

The project is open to individuals who live in Northern Ireland, are from a migrant and/or ethnic minority community background, and are involved in (paid or voluntary) community development and/or leadership.
